Frost Eater Ch. 1~ Fate and Destiny _For every dark moment, there is a small light that brings hope, and a promise_ The day was cold and gusty and Hiccup honestly only wanted it to end, nothing felt right and he was utterly miserable. His jeans were torn and his knees bloody. This was not how he'd imagined his day going when he set out for an adventure. Stoic had seemed completely ok with his wandering, but the bullies were less then ok with it. Slender hands went to rub at his eyes as he trudged towards the DWMA where he was supposed to start his first year. The wind bit at his face and bleeding knees violently as he made his way up the stairs. Of 'course the wind wasn't the only thing pushing him as suddenly he was pushed onto his butt and sent tumbling down the stairs. Raucous laughter burst all around him as the tears overflowed from his eyes like steady waterfalls, gushing and gurgling down the cliff of his cheeks. Three boys, much taller and stronger looking then he, surrounded him, smirking and pointing, jeering at the hapless boy. Pain twisted in his heart and he begged for it to stop, but the relentless insults continued on and all he could do was curl in on himself, closing his eyes tightly, and attempting to block out the sounds with his hands. "Hey! Leave him alone!" came the shout of an unfamiliar boy and Hiccup looked up, hands trembling over his ears as a boy in a blue sweatshirt and khaki pants stormed up, looking very threatening. Blue eyes reflected cold ice as they chased away the others with a hint of malice alone, which set off his white hair, making him look like some sort of personified abdominal snowman. Once the bullies had scattered, he carefully kneeled in front of the sniveling boy and held out his hand. "hey thereâ€|" he said in a surprisingly soft and rich voice, soothing to Hiccups nerves. "Are you all right?" Hiccup sniffled and nodded a little. "Thanksâ€|" he mumbled between hiccups from his crying. A small smile danced across pale lips as the slender hand twitched slightly, getting Hiccups attention. "I'm Jack, Jack Frost. And you are?" The smaller boy, still puffy-eyed and shaky, took the hand and let them move up and down. "I'm Hiccupâ€|Hiccup Haddock." he replied, voice shaking ever so slightly; Jack didn't seem to mind. "It's nice to meet you." was his only response as he helped the other up. "We should get you to the nurse, those scrapes aren't bad but we wouldn't want them to get infectedâ€|" _Chapter unfinished._
